By Benigno Aquino III

THE COMMISSION ON ELECTORAL REFORMS (CERF) has announced that the 45 million registered voters figure appearing in last year's report is "grossly inflated," says its chair, YVES TORDON.

Tordón said a figure of 40 million is more realistic, but it was not possible to do so because of the lack of data on the number of voters in 11 of the 17 regions.

He said that the 45 million figure is "grossly inflated" and that the 40 million figure is more realistic. There is a growing body of research that suggests that the use of a structured approach to the assessment of a patient's mental state can improve the reliability and validity of the assessment. This approach involves the use of a structured interview schedule, which is a list of questions that the clinician asks the patient in a specific order. This approach has been found to be more reliable and valid than unstructured interviews, which are more prone to bias and error. The structured approach also allows for the collection of more detailed information about the patient's mental state, which can be used to inform treatment decisions. However, the structured approach may also be more time-consuming and may not be suitable for all patients or clinical settings. Therefore, the choice of approach should be based on the specific needs of the patient and the clinical context.

Carnegie
In the March 10 issue is a very nice review, "The Carnegie Trust: Study on the History of the Carnegie Foundation," by Lawrence H. White. The review is concerned with administrative changes (organization, membership, and the transfer of the foundation's assets) to the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Science. The review is a very good one. I am not sure, however, that the review is as complete as it could be. The review is concerned with the history of the foundation, but it does not mention the foundation's current activities, which are a very important part of the foundation's history. The review is also concerned with the foundation's financial situation, but it does not mention the foundation's current financial situation, which is also a very important part of the foundation's history. As mentioned by David Hinkle, the government's involvement in the private sector is not limited to the health care industry. In fact, the government has been involved in a wide range of industries, including the automotive industry, the airline industry, and the telecommunications industry. The government's involvement in these industries has been a source of controversy, with some arguing that it is a violation of the free market principle and others arguing that it is necessary for the government to ensure that these industries are operated in the public interest.

Fatherly love is a rare commodity. In the past, it was often the mother who was the primary caregiver, and the father who was the provider. But in the modern world, fathers are becoming more involved in their children's lives, and this is a good thing. It helps to build a strong bond between the father and the child, and it also helps to ensure that the child is getting the best of both parents. So, if you're a father, make sure you're spending time with your kids. It's the best way to show them your love.

Figure 1 is a 3D bar chart illustrating the distribution of the number of children per woman (Y-axis, 0 to 10) for different levels of education (X-axis, 0 to 10 years) across four countries (Z-axis: Argentina, Brazil, India, Mexico). The chart shows that higher education levels generally correspond to lower fertility rates across all countries. Argentina and Mexico show a more pronounced decline in fertility with education compared to Brazil and India.

Figure 1 is a 3D bar chart illustrating the distribution of the number of species (Y-axis, 0 to 10) across different numbers of samples (X-axis, 1 to 10) and different sample sizes (Z-axis, 100 to 1000). The chart shows that the number of species increases with the number of samples and sample size, with a peak around 10 samples and 1000 sample size.

Corpses as trophies

By Andrew Ross

WASHINGTON

As the war in Iraq continues, the United States military has begun to collect and display the bodies of Iraqi soldiers as trophies. This practice, which has been going on for some time, is a clear violation of the Geneva Convention, which prohibits the use of human remains for any purpose other than identification. The military has defended this practice by claiming that the bodies are being collected for identification purposes. However, the fact that the bodies are being displayed as trophies suggests that the military is using them for propaganda purposes. This is a disturbing trend that should be stopped.

The military has also begun to collect and display the bodies of Iraqi civilians as trophies. This practice is even more disturbing than the collection of soldier bodies, as it is a clear violation of the Geneva Convention. The military has defended this practice by claiming that the bodies are being collected for identification purposes. However, the fact that the bodies are being displayed as trophies suggests that the military is using them for propaganda purposes. This is a disturbing trend that should be stopped.

WASHINGTON

The United States military has begun to use unmanned aerial vehicles (UAVs) to conduct surveillance and strike operations in Iraq. This practice has been going on for some time, but it has become more widespread in recent months. The military has defended this practice by claiming that UAVs are more accurate and less risky than manned aircraft. However, the fact that UAVs are being used to conduct surveillance and strike operations suggests that the military is using them for propaganda purposes. This is a disturbing trend that should be stopped.

No remake of biggest strawberry cake

By Steven Green

THE BIGGEST strawberry cake in the city, a 10-foot-tall cake that has been a tradition at the Strawberry Festival since 1964, will not be remade this year. The festival organizers announced the decision on Monday, saying the cake was too expensive to make and that the festival was too small to warrant it.

Oil firms appeal SC decision

By [illegible]

MANILA, Jan. 15 (AP) — The Supreme Court today rejected the appeal of the oil companies against the decision of the Sandiganbayan to convict them of illegal enrichment.

The court, in a 12-1 decision, affirmed the conviction of the oil companies, which had been granted a writ of certiorari by the Supreme Court.

The companies, which include the Philippine National Oil Company (PNOC) and the Shell Philippines Corporation, had argued that the Sandiganbayan's decision was based on insufficient evidence.

The court, however, found that the Sandiganbayan's decision was based on sufficient evidence and affirmed the conviction.

The companies had been charged with illegal enrichment under the Anti-Graft and Corruption Act.

The court's decision is a significant victory for the government in its fight against corruption.

Proposed rail depot site unsafe, says dad

By [illegible]

MANILA, Jan. 15 (AP) — A father of a child who died in a train accident today said the proposed rail depot site was unsafe.

The father, who is a member of the Philippine Railway Workers Union, said that the site was not properly surveyed and that the construction was shoddy.

Cents and sensibility

By August Conner

Just as the weather warms up, so do the wallets. It's time to start thinking about the future of your money. Here are some tips to help you get started.

1. Set a goal. What do you want to achieve with your money? Do you want to save for a house, a car, or a vacation? Or do you want to build a long-term investment portfolio? Knowing your goal will help you choose the right investment strategy.

2. Start early. The longer you save, the more time your money has to grow. Even a small amount of money saved regularly can add up over time.

3. Choose your investments wisely. There are many different types of investments, each with its own risks and potential returns. Do your research and consult with a financial advisor if you need help.

4. Reinvest your earnings. If you're investing in a mutual fund or a retirement account, make sure you're reinvesting your earnings. This will help your money grow faster.

5. Stay on top of your investments. Check in with your investments regularly to make sure they're performing well. If they're not, it may be time to make adjustments.

What if we were to "reconnect" each brain region with the original "functional" connections that it had? In other words, what if we were to "rewire" the brain? This is the idea behind the "rewiring" model, which suggests that the brain can reorganize itself to compensate for damage or loss of function. This model is based on the idea that the brain is a dynamic system that can change its structure and function in response to environmental challenges. The rewiring model is a key concept in the study of neuroplasticity, which is the brain's ability to change and adapt to new experiences and challenges.
